

We Move Your World

The Elliott Story

Established in 1947, ELLIOTT was acquired in 1979 by Tom Ansley who became the owner and Chairman of the company at a time when it comprised one small warehouse and an office operating from an old house on the western side of Pretoria.

In 1987, Elliott received the World "Number One in the World" Platinum Award from Overseas Moving Network International (OMNI), with world headquarters in London (UK).

In 1988, Elliott was runner up in the South African Non-Listed Company of the Year Award and is today recognised nationally and worldwide as one of the foremost members of the international moving and storage industry.

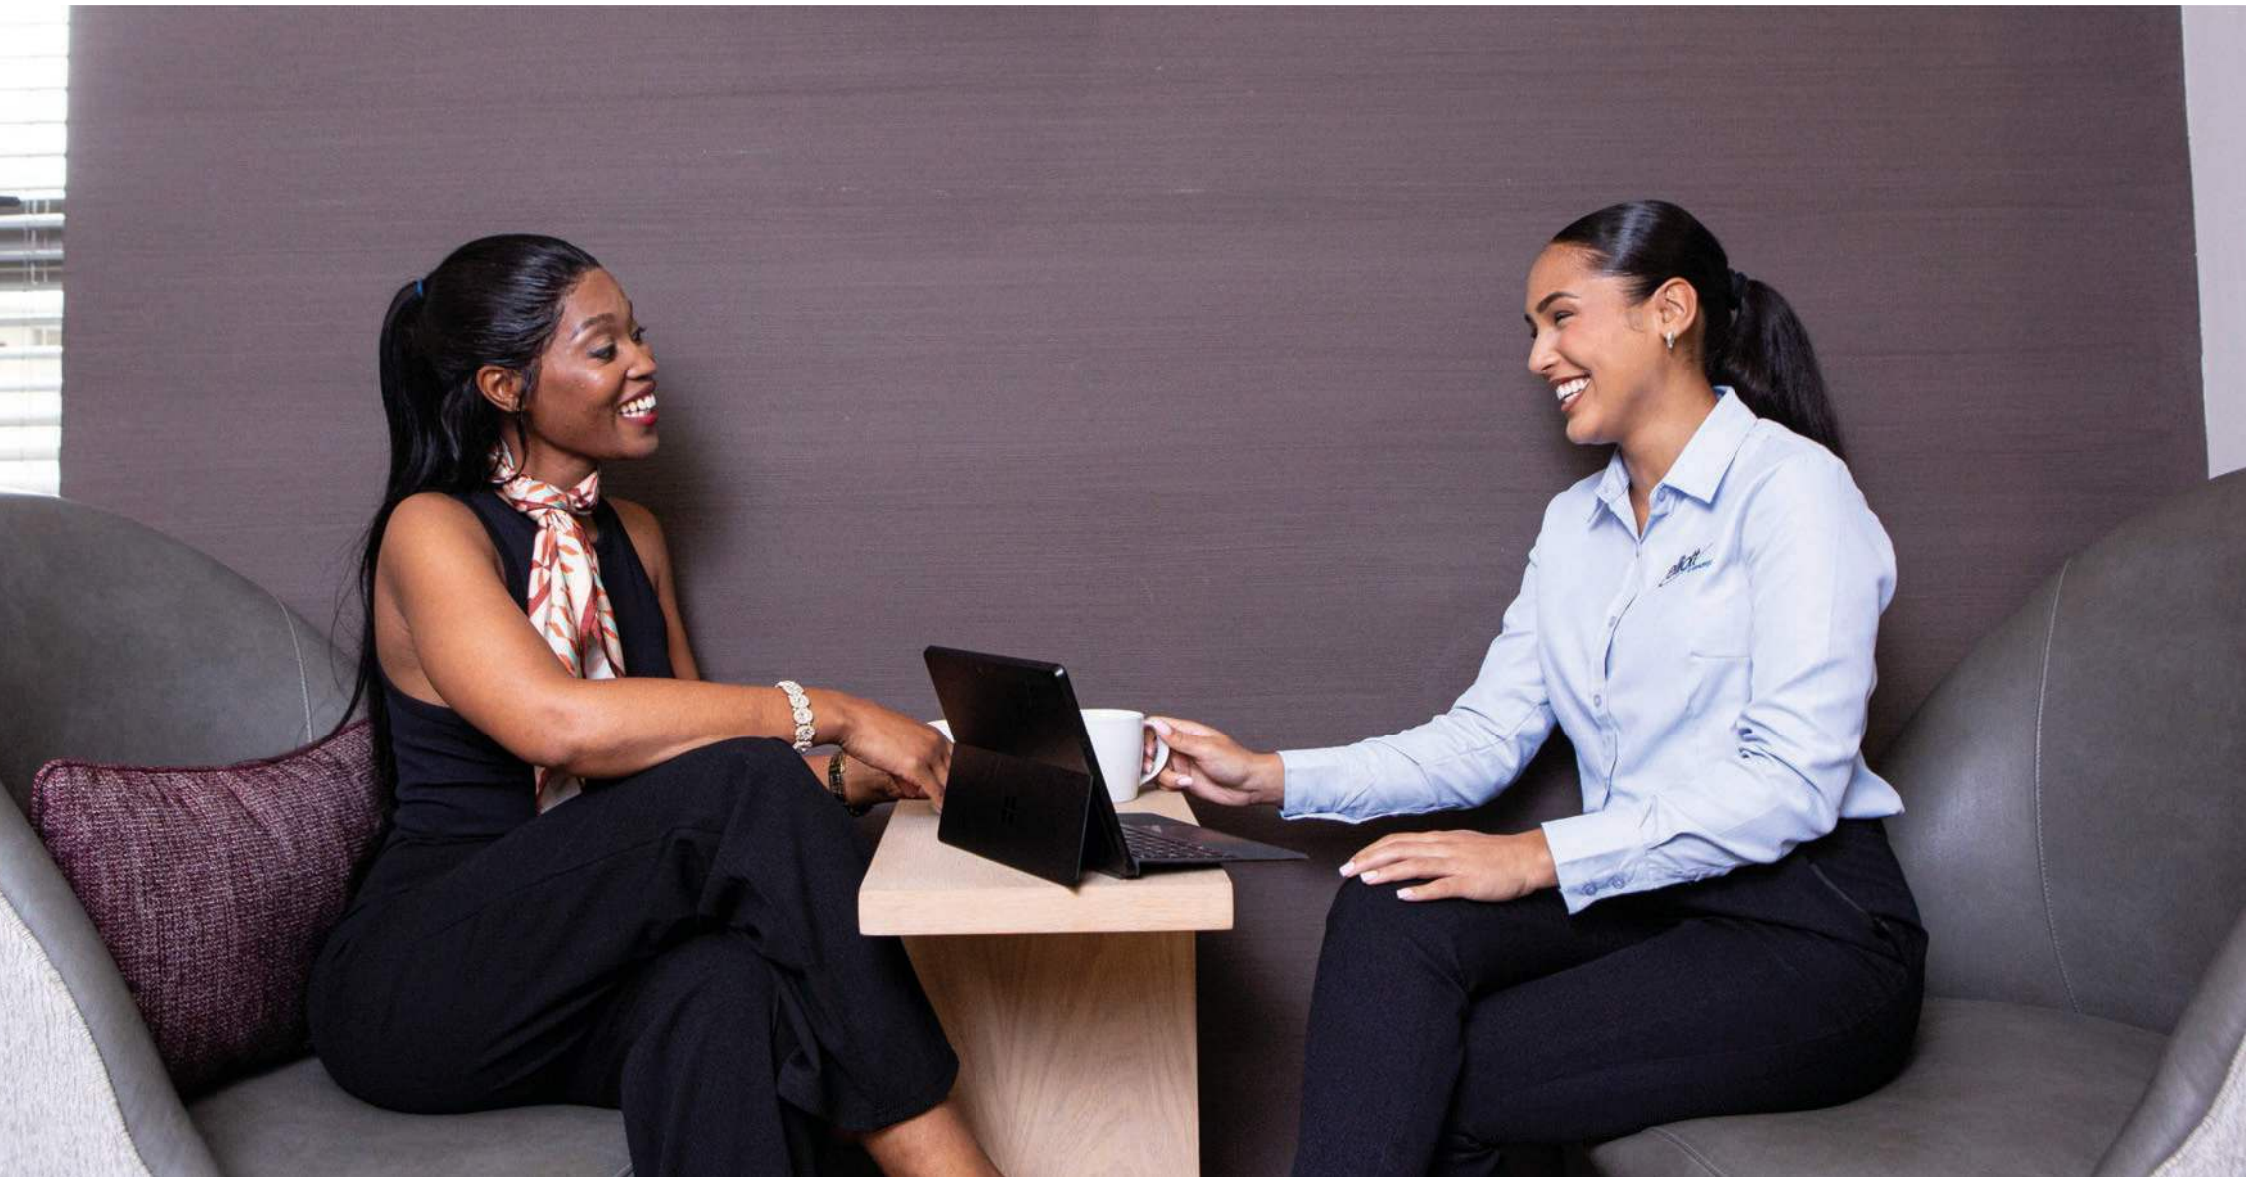

In 1998, in recognition of Elliott as a world leader in the industry, Tom Ansley was elected as the only South African to have held the most prestigious position as President of the International Federation of Furniture Removers (FIDI) headquartered in Brussels (Belgium).

The renowned and superior Elliott service is backed up by the Elliott Customer Protection Guarantee.

Folklore - Elliott is Amazing!

During the 1990's Elliott was running radio advertising campaigns. During one of the broadcasts the Elliott advertisement became stuck in a loop which continued to play for days. Those tuning in would hear "Elliott is amazing" repeatedly. This became a major discussion point and was even discussed by linguistic experts on the radio as to whether or not 'Elliott is amazing' or 'Elliott are amazing'. The rest is history and backed up by its service excellence Elliott became and is amazing!
